

| Time  | Meal                                                      | Focus for Skinny-Fat                                                                       |
|-------|-----------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 08:30 | 3-4 Whole Eggs(don't throw the yolk)                  | Healthy Fats: Yolks help natural testosterone, vital for fixing skinny-fat.         |
| 11:00 | Black Coffee +5-6 Almonds                             | Zero Sugar: Sugar is the #1 creator of the "skinny-fat belly."                      |
| 13:30 | 150gChicken/Paneer+ Kadala +Huge Salad | Fiber over Wheat: Skip the Chappathi at lunch entirely. Use the salad to feel full. |
| 17:30 | 1 Banana (Pre-Workout)                                | Fuel: Only eat carbs right before you lift.                                         |
| 20:30 | 150g Protein + 1cup Rice/2Chappathi               | Carb Backloading: Your muscles are "sponges" for carbs after heavy lifting.  |

1. The Almonds: To Soak or Not?

Yes, soak them.

- Why: Almond skins contain tannins and phytic acid, which can interfere with nutrient absorption and cause minor bloating or "heaviness" in the stomach.
- The Benefit: Soaking (for 8–12 hours) breaks down these enzymes, making them easier to digest and making the nutrients (like Vitamin E and Magnesium) more available for your brain focus at work.
- Action: Soak 6–8 almonds at night, peel the skin in the morning, and eat them with your black coffee.

2. How to Prepare Chicken & Paneer (The "Anti-Bloat" Way)

Since you want to avoid "getting bulky" (fat gain) and keep your stomach flat, you must avoid heavy gravies (like Butter Masala or Shahi Paneer) which are loaded with cream, cashews, and sugar.

For Chicken (Breast is best for your goal):

- The Method: Pan-seared, Grilled, or Air-fried.
- The Recipe: Rub the chicken with ginger-garlic paste, curd (yogurt), turmeric, and chili powder. Cook it in a teaspoon of Ghee or Olive oil.
- Why: High protein, low calorie. Avoid deep-frying or thick restaurant-style "curries" that use hidden cornstarch and excess oil.

For Paneer:

- The Method: Slightly sautéed or added to salads.
- The Warning: Paneer is high in fat. Since you are "skinny-fat," limit paneer to twice a week.
- The Recipe: Cube the paneer, toss it with bell peppers (capsicum) and black pepper. Sauté for 2 minutes. This is a great "IT professional" lunch that is quick to pack.

3. Soya Chunks (The Budget Muscle Builder)

Soya chunks are excellent because they are almost 50% protein, but they can cause major gas and bloating if not prepared correctly.

- The Critical Step:
  - Boil the chunks in water for 5 minutes.
  - Squeeze the water out completely (this removes the "beany" flavor and the gases that cause bloating).
  - Rinse in cold water and squeeze again.
- The Recipe: Sauté the squeezed chunks with onions, tomatoes, and garam masala.
- Note: Soya is great for "filling out" your frame without adding fat, but keep it to 30-50g (dry weight) per day to avoid any digestive discomfort.

Salad Strategy

| Day | Theme                       | Extra Ingredients                                             | Dressing (Mix in a small jar)                                    |
|-----|-----------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Mon | The Indian Kachumber | Finely chopped onions, green chili, coriander.                | Lemon juice + Black salt + Roasted Jeera powder.                 |
| Tue | The Mediterranean    | A few olives (if available) or extra capsicum (bell peppers). | Extra Virgin Olive Oil + Dried Oregano + Lemon.                  |
| Wed | The Peppery Crunch   | Grated Carrots and a handful of pomegranate seeds.            | Lots of Black Pepper + Apple Cider Vinegar (great for fat loss). |
| Thu | The Tangy Desi       | Sliced Radish (Mooli) and Beetroot.                           | Chaat Masala + Lemon + a tiny pinch of Amchur.                   |
| Fri | The "Protein Plus"   | Add a handful of boiled Moong sprouts.                        | Lemon + Ginger juice + Green chili paste.                        |

Soy chunks strategy

| Day | Style                | Flavor Profile | Key Spices / Ingredients                                                                          |
|-----|----------------------|----------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Mon | Desi Stir-Fry | Classic Indian | Onions, tomatoes, ginger-garlic paste, Garam Masala , and plenty of fresh coriander.       |
| Tue | Garlic-Pepper | Sharp & Spicy  | High amount of crushed black pepper , garlic cloves, and a dash of soy sauce (low sodium). |

|            |                       |               |                                                                                                   |
|------------|-----------------------|---------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Wed | Achari Soya    | Tangy & Bold  | A tsp of pickle masala or kalonji (onion seeds) and dried red chillies. Very satisfying!   |
| Thu | Green Hariyali | Fresh & Herby | Blend pudina (mint) , coriander, and green chillies into a paste. Toss the chunks in this. |
| Fri | Lemon-Turmeric | Light & Zesty | Turmeric, Ajwain (for digestion), and a heavy squeeze of lemon at the end.                 |

Chicken + paneer strategy

| Day        | Protein               | Style                            | "Flat-Belly" Secret                                                                     |
|------------|-----------------------|----------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Tue | Chicken Breast | Lemon-Garlic Pepper       | Pan-sear thin strips. Avoid thick gravy. High protein, zero bloat.                      |
| Wed | Paneer         | Hariyali (Green) Sauté    | Toss in a mint/coriander paste. Skip the Chappathi here (Paneer has enough fat). |
| Thu | Chicken Breast | Desi Bhuna (Dry)          | Cook with onions, tomatoes, and ginger. Keep it "dry" so it's easy to pack.             |
| Fri | Paneer         | Tawa Paneer with Capsicum | High crunch from the capsicum helps you feel full without needing rice.                 |

Remaining boilded egg yolkes

1. The "Wedding Glow" Scrub

Since the yolk is cooked, it acts as a very gentle, nutrient-rich exfoliant. This is great for removing the dead skin and "office dullness" after a long day.

- Step 1: Mash one boiled yolk into a fine powder in a small bowl.
- Step 2: Mix in 1 tablespoon of thick Curd (Dahi) or a little Milk. This turns the powder into a spreadable paste.
- Step 3: (Optional) Add a pinch of Turmeric for that groom-to-be brightness.
- Step 4: Massage this onto your face in circular motions for 2 minutes. The yolk particles will gently scrub your pores.
- Step 5: Leave it for 10 minutes and wash with cold water.